ARGENTONA GREENWAY

A continuity towards the sea, through the design of a path in the nature which is able to manage stormwater and filtering out the pollutants

Carretera Argentona is the road that marks the border between Vilassar de Mar and Cabrera de Mar. The stretch that connects the urban gardens of Vilassar with its waterfront has been redesigned according to its role within a strategic vision linked to the theme ecological corridors. It becomes a key connecting element between the agricultural park, the station square and the coastal park, so its road section needed a modification to be more integrated within the cycle-pedestrian connection system. Firstly, the traffic was redistributed along the parallel streets, in order to significantly reduce the carriageway (making it one-way only) in the stretch from the Nacional to the Placita del Mar) and to give more space to the sidewalk, the cycle path, the vegetation and to the parking lots.

(1) A new relationship between sidewalk and vegetation

- a. existing flower beds, suffocating for the trees
- b. continuous vegetation along the pavement
- c. opposite relation: path in the vegetation
