Case study: Berlin center focus on Heckmann-Höfe

The sheet aims to analyse the interior urban system of multifunctional passages which pass through the buildings in Berlin. The white paths shows connection between the main buillings in this area. Paths connect station to library and museum island in south of river, university to theatr in the middel and Heckmann building to sport filed in north. Heckmann-Höfe just next to the synagogue combine the Auguststraße and Oranienburger Straße in the old barn area in Berlin. This historical ensemble buildings in the past belonged to the one factory and now with several continuous yards is a good example of multifunctional paths.
