

The connection between the Windmill square and the Marins square is organized on different levels, in two different ways of solution: one is through stairs, and the other is through slopes. The stairs, on the left part, are panoramic stairs giving the view to the water and the slopes, on the right part, are linked with the historical building that contains bars and restaurants. The element that divides this two part is the pedestrian and bicycle path, that starts from the Cubic House, arrives to the Windmill and connects the city with the commercial part.
