

UF1_

WHERE: San Francisco, California
 WHO: Grow city
 WHEN: 2013
 SUPPORTERS: Terra Firma Farm

GROW CITY

Grow City is a nonprofit in San Francisco, California that works to change the way people consider the division between urban and rural to build a "more secure, sustainable, and fair" food system. Not only training programs, but also distribution of the produced food is provided.

- farming program
- food distribution
- greenhouse
- health and healthy food

UF11_

WHERE: Montreal, Canada
 WHO: City of Montreal
 WHEN: 2003
 SUPPORTERS: Food Secure Canada

ALTERNATIVES FEEDING CITIZENSHIP

A nonprofit that promotes social and environmental justice in Montreal, Canada, Alternatives' Feeding Citizenship is growing healthy food to fuel healthy communities. The project engages the community through horticultural training programs while supporting school and neighborhood

- farming program
- children related
- after school support
- management of neighborhood gardens
- health and food

UF2_

WHERE: San Diego, California
 WHO: Tower Garden
 WHEN: 2013
 SUPPORTERS: /

SOCAL URBAN FARMS

An urban farm and San Diego-based company that creates and distributes small-scale vertical gardens, SoCal Urban Farms aims to help anyone produce sustainable and healthy food. It provides local restaurants and home gardeners the Tower Garden® system for growing fresh fruits and vegetables.

- farming program
- food distribution
- supply for restaurants
- aeroponic system

UF12_

WHERE: Puerto Maldonado, Peru
 WHO: Living Seed Bank
 WHEN: 2018
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

CAMINO VERDE

Located in Puerto Maldonado, Peru, Camino Verde's mission is to plant trees and encourage environmental stewardship through educational programs and public awareness. The project's Living Seed Bank acts as a botanical garden with over 250 tree species and protects endangered varieties.

- farming program
- hydroponic
- health and food

UF3_

WHERE: Mexico City, Mexico
 WHO: Huerto Tlatelolco
 WHEN: 2012
 SUPPORTERS: Cultiva Ciudad

HUERTO TLATELOLCO

An edible forest in Mexico City, Mexico with 45 tree varieties, a seed bank, and a large section of bio-intensive gardening, Huerto Tlatelolco was created with the objective of building the local community, based on educational and social exchange program, workshops on urban agriculture, healthy living and sustainable design.

- farming program
- food distribution
- health and healthy food
- food exchange

UF13_

WHERE: Paris, France
 WHO: Agro Paris Tech
 WHEN: 2010
 SUPPORTERS: /

GRIGNON ENERGYPOSITIVE

Grignon Energie Positive, located in Paris, France, is an experimental farm run by the AgroParisTech program for sustainable development. The farm is working to reduce energy inputs by developing techniques that minimize its carbon footprint while growing enough organic food to feed between 5,500 and 8,000 people annually.

- farming program
- sustainable development
- food distribution

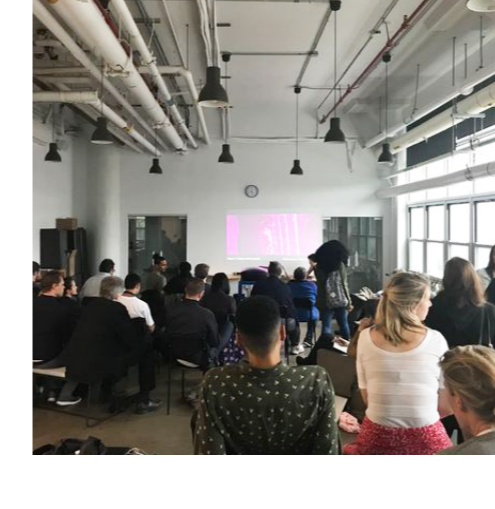

UF4_

WHERE: Austin, Texas
 WHO: Compost Pedallers
 WHEN: 2003
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

COMPOST PEDALLERS

A 100 percent bike-powered compost recycling project in Austin, Texas, Compost Pedallers strives to reduce waste, strengthen the local food system, and connect the community with farms. Residents can sign up to redirect organic waste to local farms and gardens through the bicycle-powered network.

- bike system distribution
- food distribution
- food storage
- greenhouse
- hydroponic

UF14_

WHERE: Paris, France
 WHO: Municipality
 WHEN: 2001
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

FERME DE PARIS

A municipal organic farm nestled in an expansive park, Ferme de Paris provides the public with vegetable gardens, orchards, medicinal plant gardens and a number of farm animals housed in sustainably-constructed buildings. City residents can even stay to volunteer if they want to, becoming part of a training program.

- farming program
- hydroponic
- health and healthy food

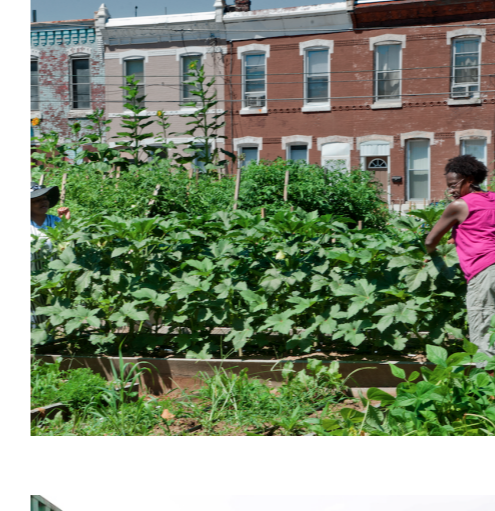

UF5_

WHERE: Memphis, Tennessee
 WHO: Mobile Food Market
 WHEN: 2000
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

MOBILE FOOD MARKET

A collaborative project among a number of organizations in Memphis, Tennessee, the Green Machine Mobile Food Market uses a bus to deliver fresh fruits and vegetables to almost 400 customers in the food deserts of South Memphis, while spreading knowledge about farming in weekly workshops.

- farming program
- food distribution
- health and healthy food training
- supply for restaurants
- food storage

UF15_

WHERE: Berlin, Germany
 WHO: Fresh and local
 WHEN: 2018
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

FRISCH VOM DACH

An aquaponics project starting on the rooftop of a former malt factory in Berlin, Germany, Frisch vom Dach uses nutrients from aquaculture to irrigate plants in a mostly closed loop.

- farming program
- children related
- health and food
- hydroponic
- volunteer base

UF6_

WHERE: Detroit, Michigan
 WHO: Municipality
 WHEN: 2007
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

DETROIT DUST

It helps to complete the "circle of life" in food production by regenerating waste into resources. Through partnerships with community coffee houses and local businesses, the organization is hoping to instill a self-sustaining culture of recycling organic waste and provide a valuable resource to urban farms and gardens in Detroit.

- farming program
- supply for restaurants
- food storage
- waste regeneration

UF16_

WHERE: Capetown, Africa
 WHO: Community Supported Agriculture
 WHEN: 1999
 SUPPORTERS: /

ABALIMI

Abalimi is an urban agriculture and environmental action group located outside of Capetown, South Africa. The organization supports and assists groups and individuals looking to improve their livelihoods through organic farming.

- farming program
- children related
- health and healthy food

UF7_

WHERE: NY
 WHO: Elon Musk, Kimbal Musk
 WHEN: 2016
 SUPPORTERS: Elon Musk, Kimbal Musk

SQUARE ROOTS

Brooklyn. They grow and sell nutritious food, from the campus of indoor modular hydroponic farms. Bringing locals real food by empowering next-gen leaders in urban farming with a strong educational program, and future leaders in urban farming—through a year-long commitment on the Square Roots team.

- farming program
- children related
- health and healthy food
- hydroponic
- volunteer base

UF17_

WHERE: Nairobi, Kenya
 WHO: Nairobi Food Security
 WHEN: 2001
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

MAZINGIRA INSTITUTE

The Mazingira Institute provides training and support for urban farmers in Nairobi, Kenya. The NGO has trained about three thousand urban farmers and organized youth and women's hubs.

- farming program
- children related
- health and healthy food training
- homeless support

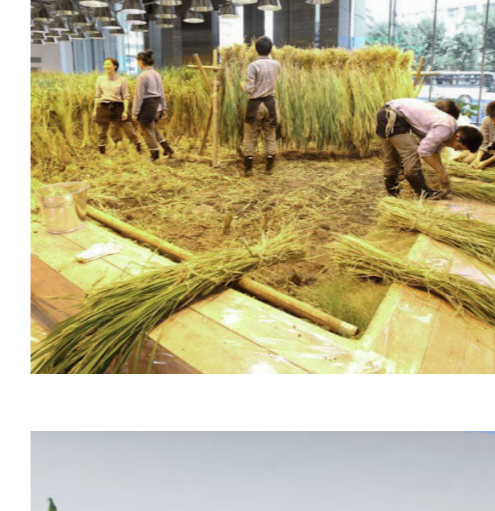

UF8_

WHERE: Baltimore, Maryland, US
 WHO: Living Classrooms Foundation
 WHEN: 1985
 SUPPORTERS: Washington, DC, Virginia, and Maryland region

Baltimore Urban Gardening with Students (BUGS)

An after-school and summer program, BUGS provides children from low-income neighborhoods in Baltimore, Maryland with a safe place for learning. Kids can garden, visit local farms, and try new foods while improving math and reading skills as well as exploring creative entrepreneurial projects.

- farming program
- low income users
- children related
- after school support
- visit to local farms
- volunteer base

UF18_

WHERE: Mumbai, India
 WHO: Thadani Association
 WHEN: 2010
 SUPPORTERS: Thadani Association

FRESH AND LOCAL

It uses urban agriculture to improve the health and wellbeing of Mumbai. The organization takes underutilized spaces and transforms them into places of community empowered food production supported by educational program.

- farming program
- children related
- health and food
- hydroponic

UF9_

WHERE: Montreal, Canada
 WHO: Concordia University
 WHEN: 1999
 SUPPORTERS: Concordia University

THE PEOPLE'S POTATO

Is a neighborhood collective providing garden and greenhouse space for community members. Volunteers grow and distribute organic produce to the surrounding community and distribute vegan meals through a food bank. The People's Potato maintains an educational program in the form of monthly workshops and an affordable Good Food Box program.

- farming program
- food distribution
- food storage
- greenhouse
- hydroponic

UF19_

WHERE: Tokyo, Japan
 WHO: Pasona O2
 WHEN: 2005
 SUPPORTERS: /

PASONA O2

An urban farm in Tokyo that grows over 100 types of produce indoors, underground, and on the exterior walls of the nine-story office-style building, Pasona O2 has been described as technologically intensive.

- farming program
- children related
- health and food
- homeless support

UF10_

WHERE: Boston, Massachusetts
 WHO: ReVision Urban Farm Company
 WHEN: 2014
 SUPPORTERS: City of Boston

REVISION URBAN FARM

ReVision Urban Farm is a community-based urban agriculture project that grows nutritious, culturally appropriate food for residents of its family home and the Boston community. The project also teaches locals about healthy eating and offers job training for youth and the homeless in the area.

- farming program
- children related
- health and food
- homeless support

UF20_

WHERE: Canberra, Australia
 WHO: Australia Urban Agriculture
 WHEN: 2001
 SUPPORTERS: Municipality

CANBERRA CITY FARM

Serving communities in Canberra, Australia, Canberra City Farms is dedicated to establishing learning hubs where people can collaborate and share their knowledge of sustainable and environmentally responsible food production.

- farming program
- greenhouse
- hydroponic

